

Meet Your Travel and Educational Guides

Mike VanHook is a high school teacher and the President of the International Sports Alliance, a non-profit organization working in Haiti. For the past eight years, Mike has traveled to Haiti and led three tours with groups of various age ranges. Since he is well known to our hosts and familiar with all of the sites that we will visit, he is confident this service learning experience will have a profoundly positive impact for all involved. Mike looks forward to introducing you to these wonderful people in this intriguing land.

Missy Jones is an Associate Professional of Special Education at Northern Kentucky University, and has been with the university since 2001. Her focus on inclusive education for individuals with disabilities parallels her interest in human rights and valuing diversity. After an introductory trip to Haiti in May, 2009, she has come to appreciate the people of Haiti and looks forward to exploring “differences” with you in this very unique part of the world.